MOOD

Editorial, high-contrast, gallery-publication. Onyx replaces the v1 Amanecer blue. Ochre dawn accent unchanged — it does the warmth on both surfaces.

SECTION RHYTHM

Alternate Onyx chapters with Paper bands. Paper isn't decoration — it carries chapter breaks (lot specs, journal indexes, price tiles). The contrast does the editorial work.

Type

Unchanged from v1. Editorial serif + neutral sans.

DISPLAY · HEADLINES

Instrument Serif

Google Fonts · transitional serif · slight contrast · italic feels classical

Voice & Form

Generous space

Let onyx breathe. Negative space is a feature, not a leftover.

Sharp corners

2px corner radius. Almost rectilinear. No rounded buttons or pillowy cards.

Soft, deep elevation

Shadows: 0 4px 20px rgba(0, 0, 0, 0.5) — slightly deeper than v1 for onyx.

High contrast, not neon

Cream is the daylight. Ochre is the warmth. No pure white, no pure orange.

Paper carries content

Alternate onyx chapters with paper bands. Specs, prices, indexes — those live on paper.

Editorial type pairing

Instrument Serif sets headlines. Geist Sans does the working text.

WHY

v1's Amanecer dawn was beautiful but blue is a crowded coffee-brand category. Onyx + Paper makes the editorial structure do the work — gallery-publication contrast instead of a single mood-driven hue. Ochre survives because it's ours.
